I cannot get the settings.xml to load, so I was trying to edit it manually, but it is not loading. I have the settings.xml file in the configuration directory. This is located in the classpath location and the file is called settings.xml. I have tried setting the properties in the myapp.properties file, and it does not work. If I try to call the settings.xml file directly, it works but the settings.xml file is not actually being read. Am I doing something wrong? I am following the example, but it does not appear to work.Q: Can you specify the namespace in the @Entity annotation when you want to have a polymorphic association? I'm wondering if it's possible to specify the namespace in the @Entity annotation, and use it when creating associations. I'm using Hibernate 4.1.4 and Spring 3.1.0. For instance, I would like to have the @Entity annotation for a class like this: @Entity public class GenericDao { @OneToOne(fetch = FetchType.LAZY) @JoinColumn(name = "FK1") @Entity(name = "generic") @EqualsAndHashCode(callSuper = true) public GenericHierarchy h; @OneToMany(fetch = FetchType.LAZY) @JoinColumn(name = "FK2") @Entity(name = "generic") @EqualsAndHashCode(callSuper = true) public List children; } And another class like this: @Entity public class GenericChild { @Id @GeneratedValue
